FOREWORD

The Kenmore Senior High School stands as a challenge to present and future students. In recognition of this challenge, "The Kenitorial" has taken as its theme for 1941, "A Year in the New School." Its purpose is to show the new opportunities of the student body and their attempt to fulfill the responsibility of making the school more than just an architectural accomplishment.

DEDICATION

In dedicating this yearbook to Mr. Frederick E. Grefe, the Class of '41 wishes to show its appreciation for his three years of capable guidance as class adviser. Grateful seniors will remember him, not only as an efficient organizer of class activities, but also as a cooperative fellow-worker in selling tickets, rehearsing for shows, decorating gymnasiums, and planning the final commencement program.

....FROM PLANE TO POOL

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE SCHOOL

From plane to pool—the birth of a school, a school dedicated, among other things, to the teaching of the ideals of democracy, and the beginning of a year of instilling educational and social learning in the youth of Kenmore. Working against an eight-week deadline in which to start construction in order to secure a government grant, the Board of Education chartered a plane to carry plans to Albany to be approved. On their return Mr. Lloyd E. Greer, president of the board; Mr. William A. Kidd, architect; and Mr. Frank C. Densberger, superintendent of schools, found themselves stranded near Military Road when the plane ran out of fuel. (1)

After the approval of the plans, architects Franklin J. and William A. Kidd started the blue prints of one of the best planned and equipped schools in the state. (2) In carrying out these plans practically several meetings for the opening of bids were conducted from the stage of the old school. (3)

On August 19, 1938 the first spadeful of dirt was overturned by Mr. Greer. (4) With work finally started, the community looked forward with expectant eyes to the completion of this modern educational achievement.

At the laying of the cornerstone on June 17, 1939 by Mr. Lloyd E. Greer and other members of the Board of Education, the Federal Government was represented by Senator James M. Mead, who gave the main address. (1)

The completion of the steel framework marked another step in the erection of the school. (2) Rooms soon took on identity; however, the scene of the cafeteria in construction bears scarce resemblance to the present lunch rooms where more than 1300 pupils eat their lunches daily. (4)

Symbolizing the constructive achievements of the entire school, the building of the swimming pool had its beginning in a deep pit of cement. (5) The architectural beauty and practicability of the seventy-five foot pool in addition to a gallery for three hundred swimming spectators is equally typical of the general construction of the building. (6) The Kenmore Senior High School stands as an educational monument to the work of the Board of Education (3) and the support of a progressive community.

ADMINISTRATION

Dr. William H. Cowley, president of Hamilton College, speaks at the board of education's official dedication of the new school December 11, 1940.

For the formal dedication of the new Kenmore High School building December 11, 1940, Dr. W. H. Cowley, President of Hamilton College, spoke on "What Now?" A condensed version of the speech is reprinted here.

"We are gathered tonight to dedicate this magnificent new high school. For many years the people of Kenmore have been dreaming about it; . . . the dream has come true, and we are assembled to congratulate the town, the school board, the superintendent, the principal, the faculty, the architect, the students. Instead of being gay and full of congratulatory kudos, I'm going to talk in a serious vein about the larger significance of this building not only to Kenmore but to the United States of America. . .

"In 1870 a great educational event took place in this country; . . . Johns Hopkins University opened its doors as our first full-fledged American university. . . . The men who founded and organized Johns Hopkins didn't fall into the temptation that faces . . . Kenmore with its new high school building. They said, in essence, that fine buildings were very much to be desired but that they preferred to put their money and their energies into building a great faculty, an outstanding student body, and a reputation for excellence that would influence all education not only in America but throughout the world. . . You have a new and beautiful high school building but what are you going to do with it? . . .

"We are living in an epoch of a smashing social earthquake . . . threatening to destroy this school and everything for which it stands. . . . What happens in this building and its counterparts throughout the United States in the next few months will determine the future of our nation and of the world. This is a very broad statement, but let me justify it by reviewing the events of the past year. . . . With lightning stroke after lightning stroke Hitler moved into Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, and France. . . . Staggering and overwhelming is the fact that Hitler achieved his successes chiefly by using the weapon that the democracies most highly prize: the weapon of education. . . . Every one of the five nations that Hitler has conquered in 1940 was a literate nation. . . . This fact Hitler used with diabolic craftiness. He either started or encouraged the circulation of half-truths or complete lies, and when these had stupified his intended victims he sent his armies in to take them over. . . .

"I'm convinced that above all else this new school building must be dedicated — together with all the school buildings of the United States, large and small — to two great and urgent objectives: first, to establish the conviction that buildings are not in themselves important but that instead the spirit that pervades them is paramount; and second, that we must train our students and the entire nation to a new and more thorough critical-mindedness which will protect us from falling into the traps with which the subterranean and persuasive propaganda of the Nazi surrounds us. . . One thing is more important than everything else put together. That one thing is the education of the youth of Kenmore to understand the crisis that we face and to rise in intelligence, in strength, and in spirit to be equal to it. . .

"This ceremony is an occasion for congratulations but much more insistently it is a challenge, a challenge to balance this beautiful and efficient architecture with a thriving and persistent spirit of devotion to democratic living."

Officials

Head men in Kenmore Senior High School affairs are the Board of Education and school officials. In addition to its work in making the new school possible, the board also plays a decisive part in the running of the school, for the policies affecting school life must be approved by this group before going into effect.

New rules were not at first passively accepted by the student body; however, the administration, in promoting more recreational and extra-curricular activities, has succeeded in making the first year in the new high school an inspiring experience for most students.

With the added conveniences and facilities which the new school offers this year, the faculty has entered into an enlarged program. Home room periods were given twice a week to provide a time for guidance work.

"Double Door," a play by Edna Ferber and George Kaufmann, was presented by the faculty this year under the direction of Miss Eve Strong. Proceeds went to the P. T. A.

Faculty meetings and special departmental gatherings consider questions of routine and new methods of teaching.

As a part of the Kenmore Teachers' Association, some of the faculty attended a dinner-dance May 11 in honor of Louis Untermeyer, poet.

As the first year in the new high school comes to a close, the classes of '41, '42, and '43 look back on a year of numerous and novel class activities. With new facilities for night dances, movies, and parties, the classes have attained more individual importance in the new building.

CLASSES

Out of the Known

We stand prepared on this threshold of life
Gazing bravely into the unknown.
We've passed all trivial things of youth.
It's now time to stand alone.

We've had pleasant hours with well-loved friends
And teachers who have inspired.
We'll always remember good times we've had
And the knowledge we've acquired.

First there was the Old School, we recall.
It had ivy-covered walls,
Steps well-worn by hurrying feet,
And dim and echoing halls.

Then the New School, huge and strange,
With new mem'ries to be made,
Exciting, adventurous things to do.
We saw the short year fade.

And now it's time to say "farewell,"
But although we're feeling sad,
We'll ever lift high our hearts and minds,
In thanks for what we've had.

MARY ELEANOR McVAY
Class Poet

Senior Officers

First Row: Marshlow, president; Guess, secretary; Wheelock, treasurer; Patterson, vice president; Schloerb, council representative; Mr. Grefe, senior class adviser.

Class History

Glancing at today's local newspaper, we were astonished by this heading of a feature article, "Way to Commemorate Matriculation of the Class of '41 Sought"—and then this sub-title, "Time Capsule Proposed." Continuing our reading we discovered that there was an urgent need since this was to be the first class to graduate from the recently constructed institution of learning, the Kenmore Senior High School. If that plan to sink a record of the achievements of the class of '41 into the earth was actually adopted, what would it contain?

We entered our sophomore year fresh from junior high triumphs only to have the ephemeral bubble cruelly pricked by upper classmen who jarringly disregarded us. That complaint is registered by all sophomore classes though. Our chronicle would certainly contain more outstanding events.

Well, let's see. In '39 our election of class officers was somewhat delayed, but the final election justified it entirely. It included such diligent individuals as James Hagerty, president; Francis Boutet, vice-president; Nina Beier, treasurer; Elizabeth Joslin, secretary; and Dorothy Schloerb, student council representative. Mr. Frederick Grefe became our class adviser.

With the profits received from our theater parties, we presented the Utica Jubilee Singers at our annual assembly. As a fitting conclusion to our year's activities, a class picnic was held at Ellicott Creek Park. Baseball and canoeing proved to be popular amusements there. (Some had the additional privilege of testing garments advertized as unshrinkable.)

We returned from the summer vacation with renewed vigor and a restored sense of importance. Again we experienced the thrill of resuming old friendships and the joy of winning new ones. Officers elected for the junior year included: James Hagerty, president; Francis Boutet, vice-president; Kathleen Guess, secretary; Nina Beier, treasurer; and Dorothy Schloerb, student council representative. Mr. Grefe became our adviser for the second time.

The junior assembly under the management of Jeanne Busch proved to be a memorable success. Among the acts in the program was a feature ballet of cavorting muscular masculinity.

Through the earlier sale of football novelties and the sponsorship of theater parties, admission to the last junior prom ever to be held in the old school was gratis. With Nina Beier as general chairman, a Hawaiian theme prevailed, heightened by the presentation of artificial leis to all the girls present and the dispensation of the drink of the Islands, pineapple juice. Rugged Russell Kean and glamorous Mary Jayne Quigley reigned regally as king and queen.

Embarking on our final years' activities we again asked Mr. Grefe to be class adviser. He was assisted by these officers: Robert Marshlow, president; Robert Patterson, vice-president; Don Wheelock, treasurer; again Kathleen Guess, secretary; and Dorothy Schloerb, student council representative. Leads in the senior play, "Stage Door," were masterfully portrayed by Jean Clark, Don Martindale, Clark Johns, and Ruth Fitch.

Ably em-ceed by Joseph Kiebala, the senior carnival chalked up a new record in ticket sales. Opening with a stage show composed of singing, playing, and acting, the carnival also featured wrestling matches, an aquacade, and dancing to Johnny Harris's orchestra. Betty Zwald, queen of the carnival, could be truly proud to reign over such an affair.

Under chairmen Shirley Jordan and Harry Oliver seniors are planning a senior supper dance as a fitting climax to three never-to-be forgotten years. Music is to be provided by Jack Spencer and crew.

Our belief is that if a time capsule were used to record our history, future generations would be duly impressed by its contents. Time, that decider of all problems, alone knows the answer.

HARRY OLIVER,
Class Historian.

Junior Prom

Sorry! No grass skirts, but leis were presented to Junior Promenaders. King and Queen, Russel Kean and Mary Jayne Quigley, were chosen by the class to rule over the Hawaiian setting of the Junior Prom of 1940, the last to be held in the old building.

Senior Class Will

We, the class of 1941, being of moderate intelligence and of superior good will toward our fellowmen, do hereby give, present, donate, bequeath, and leave the following hoarded treasures in our last will and testament in this ensuing manner, that is to say:

1) Joe Kiebala leaves to any bewildered sophomore the answers, filed and tabulated, to the question, "What you know, Joe?"
2) Mary Ellen Dent leaves the secret of climbing trees successfully (?) to any young aspirant for the title of "Tarzana."
3) In order to further complicate the issue stating "That gentlemen prefer blonds," we offer the following evidence for both sides of the argument: for blonds—Priscilla Aspinall and Dottie Hayes; for brunettes—Shirley White and Barbara Haist. Controversy over this subject has been raging throughout our high school years and to some junior we leave the final decision.
4) A booklet by Howie Clark and Pete Massing, hot off the press, entitled "How to Be a Glamour Boy" or "How to Woo 'Dogpatch' Style" is available to any sophomore or junior deficient in the art of pursuing the opposite sex with results. Applicants must finish the sentence, "I want to be a glamour boy because . . . . ." in twenty-five words or less. All entries must be sent somewhere "over the rainbow." They will be judged by originality, sincerity, and aptness of thought.
5) Winnie Bannigan and Sally Hooper (don't ask us why) leave their most valued possession, a silver-plated statue of Yehoodi, to Roger Moore and Donald Perrin.
6) As good luck insurance and to abolish all fear of possibly losing the long coveted football trophy, we are proud to leave the ability of Don Wheelock, Bill Olin, Johnny Paar, Chuck Schack, Jim Maley, Chuck Monroe, Lloyd Michael, and Dick Ebling. (Hats off every one!)
7) If you long to be the life of the party as any wide awake future senior should, you can easily realize your ambitions by taking "Six Easy Lessons From Madame La Hochheimer." (If Madame likes you, the lessons are free. If she doesn't, they are reasonably priced at $5.00 per.)
8) Mary Jayne Quigley, Shirley Abbott, and Ruth Turner bequeath their artistic talents to aid the "Kenitorial" of 1942 in maintaining the decorative value of the book.
9) Bob McCormick, Alfred Weikal, and Dorothy Beck leave to any despondent red head, a hank of their own red hair.
10) Do you under classmen want a dimple? Eloise Logan, Pat Dory, and Faye Seelbach will gladly rent theirs for festive occasions at a nominal charge. Apply at No. 10 Lullaby Lane.
11) The cutest couple K. H. S. has to offer, Peggy Mason and Al Twing, leave to another pair of faithfuls their faculty for remembering one another.
12) The Betty Crockers of our Alma Mater, Arlene Tenbrook, Bea Perry, Lois George, and Betty Miller leave their favorite recipes to other connoisseurs.
13) In answer to Miss Strong's ardent prayers, we leave the clever acting ability of Betty Goebel, Jean Clark, Ruth Fitch, Don Martindale, and Clark Johns.
14) Are you in favor of home work? No? To you we donate a super large can of choice brain food recommended by Marilyn Roesicke and Bob Erickson, who are able to both comprehend lessons and have a good time.
15) Upon entering the new school, we, the class of 1941, found said building entirely devoid of any traditions. Through the aid, cooperation, and assistance of Mr. Frederick Grefe, our own capable adviser, who has contributed to our success as a class, we are able to leave the skeleton of what we hope will become fixed activities.
16) To any collection of photographs, Shirley Baisch leaves her varied collection of pictures of our "soldier boy" Bob Evans.
17) California's gift to Kenmore High School, Vernon Harle, leaves a leaflet entitled "How To Win Friends and Influence People While Traveling."
18) We leave a long earned rest to Dick Grier, our super Student Council president.
19) To alleviate the dullness of most study halls, we leave the humor of Dorothy Lewis.
20) To Mr. Wilson, one of the newer additions to our happy family, we leave a carload of orchids for helping us in our "ups and downs."
21) Don "Hit the Road" Brandt leaves his reputation as a big "dame hunter" to Jim Coleman and Don Freudenburger.

In witness whereof we have affixed our names on this seventeenth day of May, year of 1941.

PATRICIA HANSEN,
JEAN ERISMAN.

Class Prophecy

Kenmore is in an uproar. Yes, they are still giving homework at the high school. No, the circus is not in town. This is no Miner occasion for it is the highlight of the Kenmore social season. Yes, it is an outstanding wedding that has all Kenmore on pins and needles.

It is hard to believe that Joe Mugwump and Dolly Persimmon, typical Kenmore High School students, class of '41, are finally taking the great leap. Why, it seems as if it were only yesterday that Joe and Dolly were breezing their way through high school in a happy daze, talking about assignments and crowing about noon-hour dancing just like the rest of us. They used to wander hand in hand through the hallowed halls of our Alma Mater, and we often saw them sipping cokes, their favorite Beveridge, at the Alcobar after school. They passed en-Dearing notes in study hall and whispered surreptitiously behind textbooks in the library. They complained about detention and drew up wonderful plans of how they would run the school. A cute couple, these two, and loads of people prophesied marriage. In spite of that, the news of their wedding comes as a surprise to most of us. We suddenly realize that we have left our school days a long way behind us and that we can never return to these old times again. But enough of this retrospect—we'll be late for the ceremony if we don't hurry.

Pushing our way through the crowd around the church with the help of policemen Ed Grant and Larry Phillips who are dressed in snappy blue and white uniforms, we are ushered to our seats by Ed Allaire. We notice that the other ushers are Clarence Olson, Jack Pettitt, Jim Forsaith, Howie Forest, and Harry Elliott.

We see that "front row center" has been taken as usual by the "Eligible Bachelors' Club," consisting of Jack Leiser, Johnny Markham, Johnny Ehinger, "Honey" Eisert, Chuck Pohl, Bob Moore, Chuck Rowland, Jim Ott, and Don Kline, under the able leadership of "Timber" Oliver.

Everyone is in a state of expectation as the wedding march is about to begin. The organist, Joy Detenbeck, has taken her place and is ready to sound the first glorious chords. But wait—something is wrong! Elizabeth Joslin and Ruth Mergler inform us that the organ has broken down. However, "Genial" Gil Zimmer comes gallantly to the rescue with a touching rendition of "Lohengrin" on the Jews harp. A hush falls upon the congregation as The Reverend Mr. Edward Gudgel, best man Ray O'Keefe, and the Harris-ed groom enter. Now the bridesmaids, Genevieve McKenna, Virginia Hoffmeister, Barbara Arnoldi, Shirley Potts, Margaret Wardrop, and Irene Moelich, sweep down the aisle. Flower girl Lorena James trips lightly in, scattering rose buds. She is followed by Virginia Gary, the maid of honor. There is a gasp of wonder as the bride makes her entrance in a cloud of white organdie.

"Dearly beloved, we are gathered here . . . . ." The ceremony has begun. There is an audible sniff behind us and turning, we see "Romeo" Burns weeping into his handkerchief at the touching scene.

What is this? There seems to be a hitch in the proceedings. Apparently the best man has mislaid the ring. There is a frantic Hunt before the Jewell is recovered. After this near calamity, everyone breathes a sigh of relief.

Now the fatal words have been spoken, and the ceremony has been sealed with a Kiss. The happy throngs pour out of the church into the street. It is a fine Somer's day, and the Maple trees are in full bloom. Such an important ceremony has drawn reporters from leading publications of the country. As the bride and groom dash lightly down the steps of the church under the canopy of a May sky there is a blinding flash as Bob Donaldson snaps a picture for "Life;" meanwhile Chuck Smith is dashing off a report of the wedding for "The New York Times."

We follow the crowd down Delaware Avenue to the local inn and tea room whose slogan is "Everything you get you pay for," where the reception is being held. Doorman Clark Beardslee ushers us in, and we are greeted by the manager, Dick Prudhomme. The lobby is overrun with bell-hops and elevator boys whom we recognize as Jim Logan, Chuck Sheppy, Ed Habicht, Jim Murdock, Bob Steward, and Hank Kolk.

The "Eligible Bachelors' Club" again puts in an appearance singing their theme song, "Fools Rush in," with gusto, and rushing toward the candy girls Ruth Tarbell, Lois Bixby, Teddy Bleck, Mary Eleanor McVay, and Jean Erisman, who are Petrie-fied.

Everyone turns Green with envy at the sight of the wedding gifts which Dick Bretherton and Pat Hansen are bringing in in a wheel barrow. Bob Hartman and Norma Sjoden and Don Reichert and Marge Stewart are oblivious of their surroundings as they dance to the music of Cliff Hoag and his Tubadors who include Frank Lumney, Howie Slavan, Bob Wiedemann, Dean Flader, Ardell Davidson, Bob Alessi. Kenny Rawe, and Tom Lauderdale, along with Vocalist Bob Langley, who is at present singing sweetly "To You Sweetheart Aloha." Meanwhile, George Salisbury, the eminent movie producer, is trying to arrange screen tests with all the good looking girls. To our surprise we find Gertrude Mullen and

Class Prophecy

Bob Boyne next to us, playing tic-tac-toe on the back of Bruce Leonard's White shirt. Ahead of us sit Jean Hilt and Elden John, coyly holding hands. Around us we see Tom Arnold and Dotty Lewis, world-famous psychologists, and Everett Woodworth, who is the author of the recent best seller "How to Pass Latin Tests in Six Easy Lessons" and also "Translations of Cicero for the Poor Student." These two books have met with great success among the present students of Kenmore High School. Elaine Watson, the fashion designer and editor of "Vogue," is sitting with them, as are Joe Rawleigh and Norma Ross, co-authors of the current literary hit, "How to Play Tiddlewinks and Like It." The magnificent physique of Dick Johnston, champion tennis player and winner of the Davis Cup, heaves into view in the horizon. He is accompanied by Andy Dankovitch, Kenmore's Millionaire, who, it is rumored, made his money by manufacturing Christmas seals with the help of Patsy Claus (no relation of Santa). Two of Kenmore's well-known citizens are sitting across the aisle from us: they are Betty Gilbert and Don Sullivan. Their fame has spread far and wide. Of course, everyone has heard of Gilbert and Sullivan! Gladys Wilsman arrives on the roller skates which she won in the Feeney Soap Chip Slogan Contest. We hardly recognize June Draper, who is with her, and realize that it is because she has Dye-ed her hair. Magdalene Fitchijian, resplendent in her nurse's uniform, stops a moment to regale us with the latest happenings at the well known Hadley Hospital, and Lois Houck cannot resist telling us the news from the publishing firm where she works. It seems that Nancy Payson has just written a revised edition of Mother Goose and has changed the famous lines,

"Hang your clothes on the hickory limb
But don't go near the water," to
"Hang your clothes on the Hawthorne tree,
And I hope you drown, you dope."

Soon, we are discussing the political situation and the merits of the various candidates in the forthcoming national elections. A hot argument ensues as to whether Glenn Powers, candidate of the No-Good Party, is more worthy than Tom Lanphear, who is backed by the Anti-Everything Party. We decide that Madeline Parsons, first woman candidate for president, has a good chance to steal the election with her platform of "What the heck."

Our conversation is suddenly interrupted by the unceremonious arrival of Clark Dorsay, who breathlessly reveals that after ten long years of painstaking work, tracing the roots of his family tree, he has finally discovered that he is very remotely related to Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey! However, when we asked about his musical ability, he blushingly admits that he is not a very good Fiddler.

". . . . ." rouge guaranteed to stimulate the bloom of youth, lipstick guaranteed kiss-proof, perfume strong as a magnet . . . . ". What's this? Why, its Jane Pritchard, Marjorie Paintner, and Shirley Albee, who seem to have set up a cosmetic concession in the lobby. We wander up to ask about business and encounter Gordon Davis, who is indignantly complaining that, all advertising to the contrary, the Shirley Jordan Beauty Aid Lipstick is not kissproof! Meanwhile, in the flower shop, Bruce Henderson is shrewdly dickering with the salesgirl, Rosemary Lane, about the purchase of an orchid. "But, Miss Lane, ten dollars for one overgrown iris! It's unconstitutional." We depart from that vicinity in haste.

Suddenly a great din is heard in the next room. There is obviously a fight brewing. Jane Hambleton, standing in the doorway with her badminton racquet, tells us that the bride and groom are quarreling about how to cut the wedding cake. "Why don't they get a Hammer?" is our bright suggestion. They do, and the noise ceases.

Heavens! We just remembered! We had an appointment this afternoon to discuss the influence of the electro-magnetic ray upon Vitamin Q with Professor Randall Wall of Staley University. We are in the midst of a frightful quandary when the Professor himself walks in. He is carrying his new invention, a retro-active sun-lamp and electric razor combination. At our insistance he obliges with a demonstration of the amazing facilities of his contraption. We are still gasping as he explains the underlying principle of the invention. We begin to think; this always is fatal and we become hopelessly confused. We are restored to complete consciousness only by the wildly discordant sounds emanating from outside, which we recognize as Cliff Baker's new gadget, the Streamlined Syncopated Auto Horn. This signifies that our cab is waiting, and we take a hasty leave of the gay scene. Our taxi-driver, Howie Sanders, whips us to Fairbanks Field, Kenmore's new airport, where we board the Kritz Clipper, piloted by Bob Randolph and Bill Bowman. Imagine our surprise at finding Bill Osborne, Gloria Geisil, Jean Wiggins, Wally Cook, and Nancy Rorke as our fellow passengers. Soon, we are high above the clouds reminiscing about the "good old days" as our plane speeds on. And at this point we leave you, dear readers, in the same state as ourselves—in the air.

Post Graduates

The initial year in the new high school was marked, among other things, by greater strides in extra-curricular activity by the postgraduate class. Sixty-three members strong at the outset, largely because of the interest in the new building, the class has dwindled to thirty as a larger and larger number secured work.

For the first time, since the size of the student body prevented the practice a few years ago, the 'P.G.'s" have been allowed the privilege of attending assemblies. Enjoyed by this year's group, this privilege would have been a much appreciated pleasure to the scores of "P.G.'s" of the past who were compelled, because of the seating capacity of the former auditorium, to remain sitting in their home room while the rest of the student body was enjoying the assembly programs.

At Christmas time, the class then residing in room 224, joined the many larger home rooms in supplying holiday food and gifts for less fortunate but worthy families. Although the size of the class had decreased considerably, several bountiful baskets were eagerly filled under the guidance of Miss Mollie Jones, home room teacher, and the committee consisting of Bob Morton, Grace Howell, and Patricia Huebschwerlen.

The room was very prominent in sports activities, both varsity and intramural. The president of the letter club was "P.G." Bob Morton. George Thomas, who left school after the first term, was the captain of Kenmore's football team. The champion swimming team was captained by another member of the post graduate group, Harold Inskip. Inskip also received the award for the most outstanding and most valuable merman of the school. In addition, many others participated in varsity sports.

Under the guidance of athletic manager John Stevens, the class gained the volley ball championship and was runner-up in the basketball games. Howard Geyer became interclass ping pong champ, although he was in close competition with Don Mundie, fellow "P.G."

In the second term the "P.G.'s" because of their diminished size, moved to room 311. Much of the home room time was consumed in filling out vocational guidance inventories in conjunction with the senior home room activities. By systematically jotting down relatives' characteristics, various activities, hobby interests, habits and best scholastic subjects, those "P.G.'s" still somewhat dubious about their futures, were helped to determine in what line they should develop. Those presumably certain usually became either more satisfied or dissatisfied.

Junior Officers

First Row: Pilkey, president; Coffman, secretary; Mr. Pitkin, adviser.
Second Row: Musty, vice president; Massing, student council representative; Freudenberger, treasurer.

"A new life for a new school" seems to have been the motto of the junior class, for originality and variety have been prominent in its activities. With Mr. Leroy Pitkin as adviser, the juniors opened the year with something never before attempted by a class. They presented in the school a full length movie, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," and a dance, both of which succeeded financially and socially. This form of entertainment will probably become a traditional junior class activity.

In February the class held an open dance in the gymnasium with Danny Bogart and his orchestra furnishing music. The band is composed chiefly of junior boys who have played for many of the school functions this year.

The traditional junior show was presented in an assembly for the student body with songs and swing by members of the group, and an old-fashioned melodrama complete with villain, hero, and heroine. Dancing and roller skating made up the rest of the show and provided a variety of entertainment for the students.

"Marineland," the first junior prom ever to be held in the new school, was held May 29 with the underwater caves in Florida as its theme. The gymnasium was transformed by seashells and green cellophane seaweed into a veritable cave. Don Freudenberger and Virginia Coffman reigned over this watery domain as king and queen. Committee chairmen were as follows: decorations, Bettie Yoder; program, June Reimann; favors, Janet Holland; refreshments, Dick Simpkins; orchestra, Bob Hott; invitations, Margaret Cochrane; and checking, Jim Coleman. Virginia Coffman was general chairman. Students were able to attend this novel affair free of charge as enough money was made on various class activities throughout the year to cover expenses.

The prom completed the activities of the class as juniors. Now class members are looking forward expectantly to their senior year in the new school.

Junior show spotlight! Gridders turn sissies as they mimic football training.

Sophomores

First Row: Mr. Barna, sophomore class adviser; Moore; Foley.
Second Row: Joe Sweeney; Enright; Jack Sweeney.

Proving to its fellow students that sophomores aren't meant to be "seen and not heard," the Kenmore High School class of '43 has shown talent in organization, activities, and originality.

The officers and Mr. George J. Barna, the class adviser, planned the year's program, which included two theater parties in November and February, and a Christmas sale of chocolate Santa Clauses.

A new idea, a home room president's council, was carried out. The council meets with the class officers and adviser and discusses sophomore events. The presidents convey the news to the home rooms, and in this way everyone is informed of class activities.

Socially as well as scholastically-minded, the class originated after-school dancing among home rooms. When this proved successful, it sponsored a "Dance of Bands" in January. The two rooms, each with a different orchestra, were used by the students for dancing. Also in January the class presented to the high school a nickelodian that didn't need money to operate.

The sophomore assembly, presented in the fall, was a talent show which took place in a mock courtroom. Hard work on the part of the students made the production an unquestionable success.

An "Experience Book" is being written by Patricia Enright. This book, when completed, will include all the activities of the class of '43 from promotion exercises to graduation.

Amid balloons of red, white, and blue (the official class colors), Princess Patricia Streng and Prince Joseph Sweeney reigned with pomp and ceremony over the Soph Hop in the gaily decorated school gymnasium. The dance, the first formal Soph Hop in the school's history, was free to sophomores and their dates because of their support of all class activities.

The princess wore a sparkling diamond tiara, and dainty gold loving cups were given to both the prince and the princess. As there were no previous prince and princess, Mr. Roy G. Freeman, the principal, presented the cups.

Sophomores take a bow after the November sophomore assembly, the first such pupil-talent variety program of its kind on the new stage.

"The Sovereign Court of Calamonafrisco" was the scene of the annual sophomore assembly, presented in the fall. It was a talent show, which took place in a mock courtroom, with Connie Foley as the "slightly off-balance" judge and Walter Voisinet as the court crier. Each participant was brought before the judge as a criminal who must prove his innocence by performing.

Pat Enright, Edith Gordon and Mary Patterson sang "Down Argentina Way," and Mary Lou Rider sang Mr. T. Francis McLaughlin's song, "My Heart Swings Back to You." Danny Bogart's orchestra "gave out" with some really "hot" numbers.

Bill Jacobs kept the audience "in stitches" with his German dialogue. He told a sad, sad story of how his only car had exploded, how wrong the world was, and how stupid everyone seemed to be except, of course, himself.

One high spot of the show was a poem presented by John Snyder, Robert Bodkin, Fred Weller, and Walter Voisinet. The boys gave an imitation of choral speaking with actions. After their performance was over, the audience found out that they were supposed to be escaped maniacs, and John English was their dictatorial keeper.

Robert Bodkin gave a monologue on "How to Ask a Girl to Dance." Then he played selections on the piano while telling anecdotes to the audience. "Rubadub dub, three men in a tub—how unsanitary!" is just an example of Bob's art.

To wind up the show the entire cast sang the sophomore's theme song, written by Fred Weller. The curtain closed to the ringing of loud applause.

Daily life in the school — the routine activities which have characterized the first year in the new building. Supplemented by a public address system, scientifically designed classrooms, a larger auditorium, a more complete library, and modern equipment in the science, home economics, business, and industrial arts departments, school life has risen far above the slate and pencil status.

SCHOOL LIFE

School Life

"Mike fright" holds no terror for Charlotte, whose voice is often heard over the public address system.

Trophy case catch — Colgate football cup! Mr. Freeman accepts the first championship award for the new school.

Mr. McLaughlin finds "The Lost Chord" on the new organ.

School Life

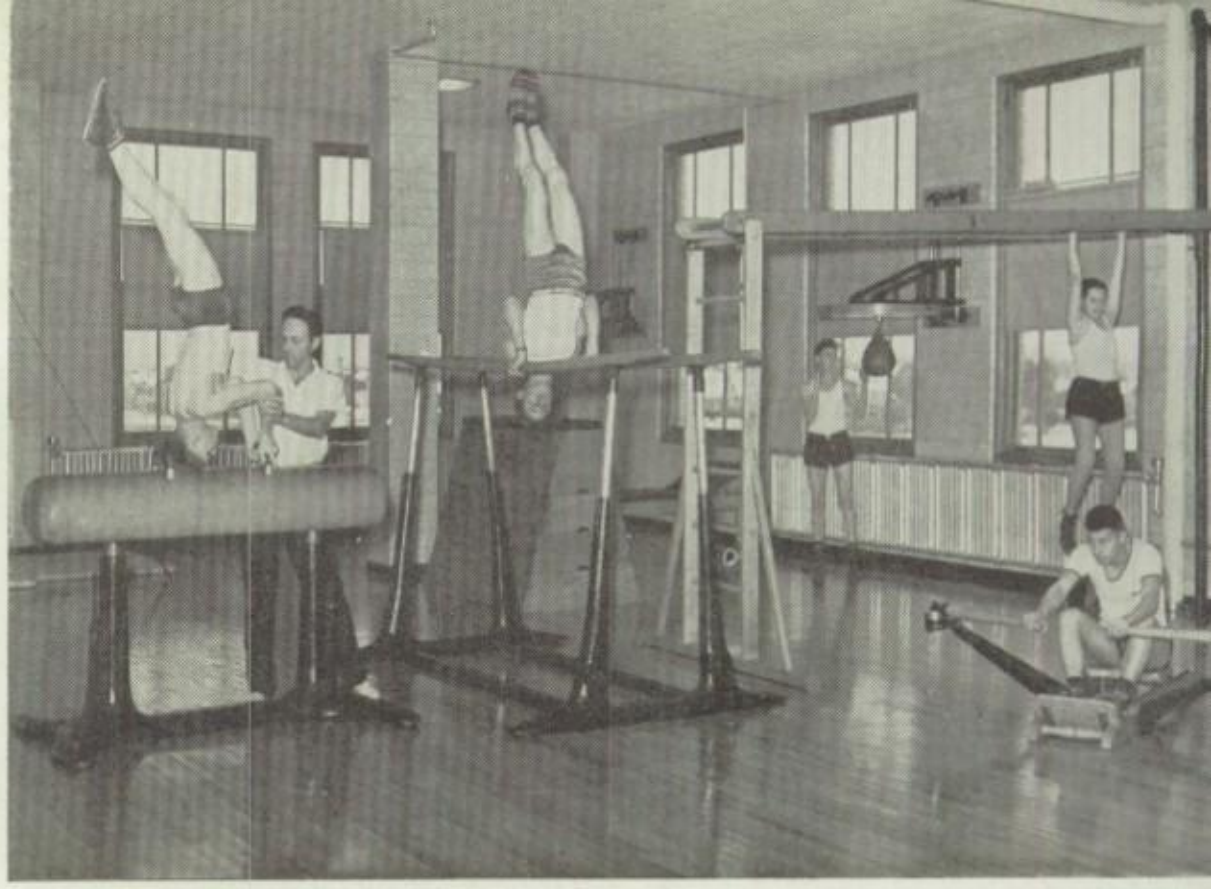
There's a place for it! Additional library space provides more room for informal pupil-teacher discussions.

Books in review. More student assemblies characterized the first year in the new school.

What, no big little books? However, the library does have 7,000 other volumes and 65 current magazines.

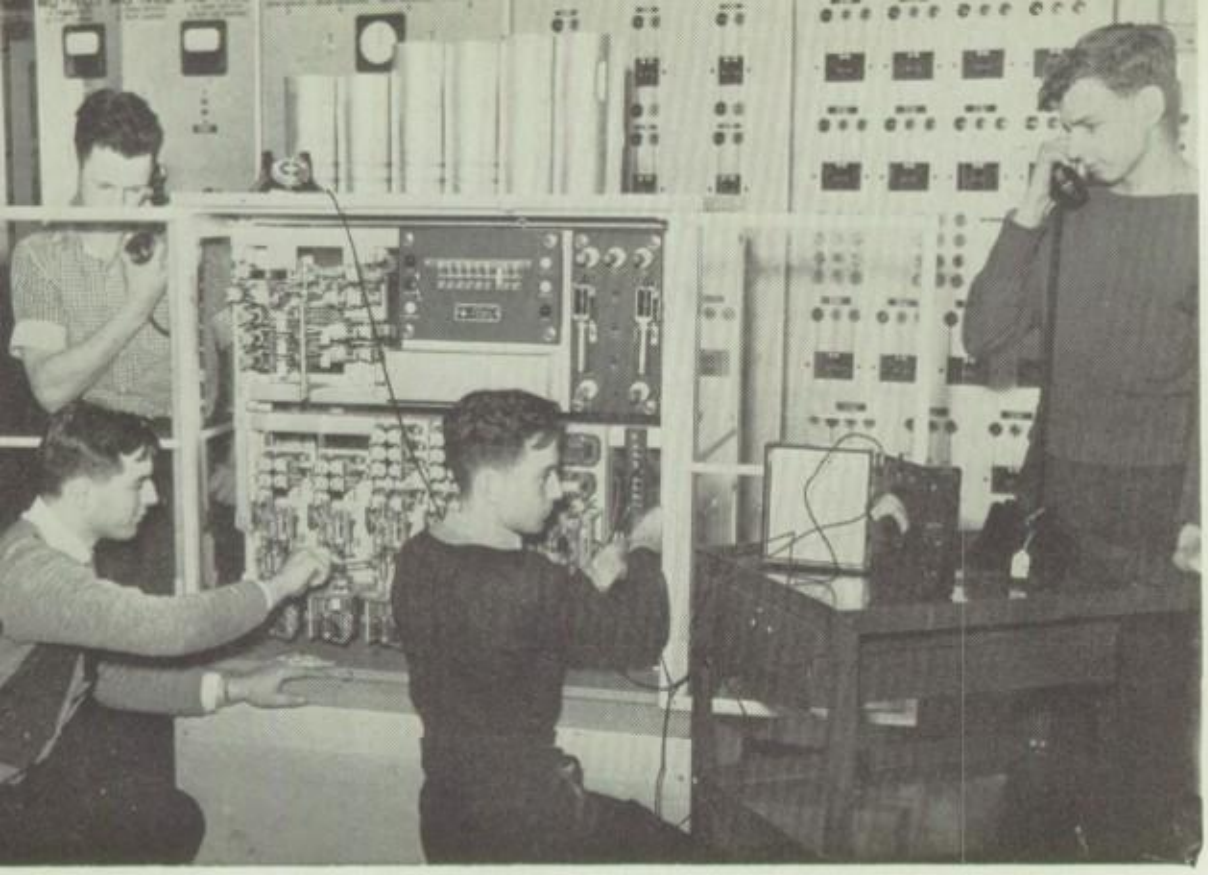
School Life

Circus in town? No, it's just a corrective gym class to improve physical fitness.



And sweet music shall come forth! The band class meets in the sound-proofed band room.

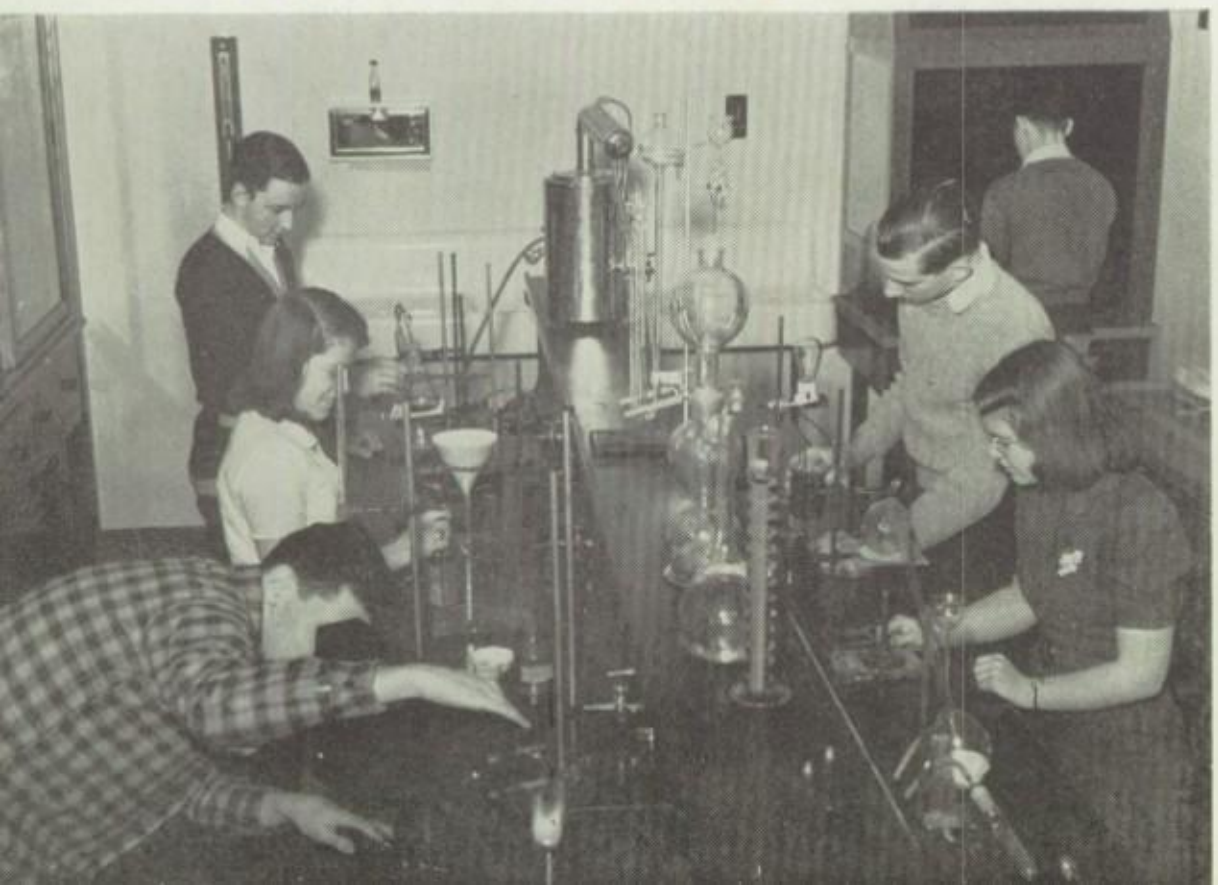
Pounding the keys! Commercial students take advantage of the new comptometers.



School Life

"Hello, Central?" Mechanically-minded students at work in the enlarged industrial arts department of the new school.

Modern Michelangelos master the brush! Individual work is done in the art department.



Potential Pasteurs ponder over experiments in the midst of some of the latest types of scientific equipment for high schools.

Wednesday night — club night in the new school! The new feature of a weekly program made possible by the larger building has developed the student's social attitudes as well as increased his interest in daily class room work. New types of clubs have attracted more pupils to leadership practice and cooperative work.

ACTIVITIES

Kenitorial Chiefs

First Row: Guess; Mr. Vosburgh, adviser; Schloerb.
Second Row: Eves; Erickson.

Patriotism is a fine thing but staff members are not blue about staying out of the red this year. Under the supervision of Dorothy Schloerb, editor-in-chief, and Clarence R. Vosburgh, adviser, the staff chose the first year in the new high school for the theme of "The Kenitorial."

New features of the '41 book include: scratch board for the division pages, snapshots of school life on the advertising pages, and more space for the individual classes. The work of Kay Guess, advertising manager, and the efforts of Jack Eves and Bob Erickson, business managers, helped in the publication of the 1941 "Kenitorial."

Rostrum Editor

RUTH TARBELL
Editor-in-Chief

"The Rostrum" may not have "scooped" the 1940 presidential election, but the students of Kenmore High School learned from their newspaper about such things as the 1940 Senior Carnival queen, the king and queen of the Junior Prom, the senior class valedictorian and salutatorian, and the editors of the 1941 "Kenitorial" and Alpha Phi Lambda's "Flame."

Editor-in-chief for 1940-41 was Ruth Tarbell. Under the management of Jack Eves, business manager, and Bob Erickson, circulation manager, the business staff sold more than 550 subscriptions. Howard Jansen and Bob Donaldson composed "The Rostrum's" photography staff. Divided into two sections this year, the editorial board consisted of reporters and editors.

Attempting to present a many-sided picture of Kenmore High School life, "The Rostrum" included items of interest about school personalities in "Kay Guesses" and "Spotlite" in addition to the straight news articles of club and class activities. Some of the Kenmore students and alumni who have achieved recognition have been brought to the attention of the student body through "The Rostrum." In its editorials the paper has tried not only to commend the students and the administration for worthy accomplishments but also to point out to its readers some of the phases of school life which need correcting. Sports, both intramural and varsity, were represented in "Sport Chat."

Student Council

First Row: Schloerb; Grier; Mr. Freeman, principal; Mr. Grefe, senior class adviser; Massing.

Second Row: Hett; Enright; Moore; Marshlow; Pilkey.

In addition to routine activities, the student council cooperated with the permanent seating plan and appointed a committee to survey other high school cafeterias for comparison.

A complaint and suggestion box, placed in the front office, yielded a request for a parliamentary law course, which was established. Bill Baker gave a resume of interscholastic athletic activities at intervals. Senior rings with stone settings were made available, and post graduates obtained student council representation.

Material for a student handbook has been collected and is ready for publication next year.

Sub-Council

To develop its program, the sub-council has held many meetings this year. It took charge of the tickets for the P. T. A. play, and supervised the pupils' Joint Charities campaign in the spring.

To bring about closer home room organization, the custom of electing a separate sub-council member in the middle of the year was abolished, and home room presidents became the representatives.

Two sub-council representatives were members of the standing cafeteria committee. Nominations for next year's student council president were also directed by the home room presidents, who form the sub-council.

First Row: Petterson; Boyne; Rawe; McIntosh; Grier, president; Fischler; Towe; Marion; Hett.

Second Row: C. Pohl; Cook; Kreher; Glennie; Schmitt; Coffman; Thompson; Jacobs.

Third Row: Barnes; Hooton; Massing; Kirst; Lingel; Brandt; Weig; Patterson; Cashmore.

Fourth Row: Walters; Williams; Ebling; Shepard; Timby; Johns; Noel; Hamilton.

Debate

First Row: Brandt, manager; Bodkin; Gudgel; Mr. Braunton, coach; Pierce; Voisinet; Hett.

"Mr. Chairman, honorable judges, worthy opponents, and friends," the topic for debate this year was Resolved, That the federal government should have more power. Actual debating did not begin until the second semester, but members of the squad started earlier to ferret out stray bits of information, to prepare "briefs," and to write their advance speeches.

The two sophomores on the team, Wally Voisinet and Bob Bodkin, were a little surprised when they discovered at their first debate that every member of a team takes part in the rebuttal, but they recovered to gain valuable experience in impromptu speaking.

The manager of the squad was Don Brandt, who arranged debates with Niagara Falls, Fredonia, and Silver Creek, among others.

Hi-Y

In fulfilling its purpose, which is "To create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school and community," the Kenmore Senior Hi-Y Club conducted six deputation services in local churches this spring on the theme "Christian Manhood." Those who spoke at these services were Don Brandt, Al Hett, Dick Hiler, Cliff Baker, Jack Leiser, and Harry Oliver.

To further carry out its purpose, the Hi-Y held its annual Holy Week service at which time there were speeches and discussions on the various religions to which the members belong. The annual Father-and-Son and Mother-and-Son banquets and several faculty nights were held to acquaint parents and teachers with the ideals and the program of Hi-Y.

First Row: Shaw; Campbell; Freudenberger; Hiler, treasurer; W. Kirst, vice president; Patterson, president; Mr. Braunton, adviser; Baker, recording secretary; Eves, corresponding secretary; Musty; Davey; Edward; Bogart.
Second Row: VanDeBogart; Grier; Duddleston; Leiser; Oliver; Brandt; Schack; Davidson; R. Jansen; Stetson; Petterson; Olin.
Third Row: Read; Lyon; Hott; H. Jansen; Pettitt; Osborne; Markham; Hett, council representative; Wheelock, historian; J. Kirst; Geyer; Williams; Ehinger.

Thespians

First Row: Vervaeke; Goebel, secretary; McVay, vice president; Miss Strong, adviser; Brandt, president; Fitch, treasurer; Ross.

Second Row: Tarbell; Styer; Hansen; Claus; Clark; Schloerb; Hambleton; Erisman.
Third Row: Adams; Cossitt; Lyon; Johns; Simpkins; Gudgel; Martindale.

Discussing articles from "The High School Thespian" magazine, reading one-act plays, and finally deciding upon "The Wedding" by Kirkpatrick for the annual Ithaca College play festival kept Troupe 108 of the National Thespian Dramatic Honor Society busy during the meetings that were not occupied with initiating new members and making plans for the annual June banquet, which is usually attended by many former Thespians.

The Thespians were well represented in the cast of the 1941 senior play "Stage Door" since eleven out of the thirty-two actors were members of Troupe 108. The fact that the membership of the club has increased from eight to twenty-one members this year seems to indicate a growing interest in dramatics.

Art Round Table

By selling calendars, candy dishes, flower holders, and other objects of art, members of the Art Round Table earned enough money to sponsor a private exhibit in May. Prizes were given for the best oil and water-color paintings made during the year.

The club held its annual banquet in February and the new officers were announced at that time.

Under the guidance of Miss Jeannette Underwood, members of the club have tried to advance their knowledge of art this year.

First Row: Quigley; Schwemle; Tromanhauser; Jordan, president; Miss Underwood, adviser; Roesch; Abbott, vice president; Soissa, secretary-treasurer; Watson.

Second Row: Skarin; Mutchler; Studier; Hofmann; Hoffmeister; D. Davis; Smith; I. Davis.

Third Row: Hadley; Busch; Wasson; Laramie; Turner; Duscher; Wheeler; Panezich; Lederer.

Fourth Row: Rapp; Wagner; Webb; Bleck; Seelbach; Wirges; Lovelace; Yoder; Miller.

Dramatic Club

First Row: Adams; Hiler; Leonard; Weller; Snyder.

Seeking to acquaint interested students with the art of the theater, the dramatic club, more formally known as the "Mask and Wig," has had not only scenery designing and making but also stage organization as programs for two of its meetings. By hearing several skits in various stages of rehearsal, the club members learned how a play director organizes his actors.

Besides the Christmas pageant with a large cast, there was the spring operetta, "Chonita," in which Jean Clark, Jack Adams, and Douglas Adams had the speaking parts. In addition, the "Mask and Wig" presented one- act plays in assemblies to give members the opportunity to practice what they had learned and to earn enough points to become Thespians.

Honor Club

Should the class of 1941 wage its own "Battle of the Sexes," there seems evidence of an ultimate feminine victory. Leading Kenmore High School's Honor Club is Valedictorian Marilyn Roesicke who shares top honors with Salutatorian Dana Payne. Closer examination of the club's roster reveals the girls outnumber the boys 23 to 11.

Membership in the club is determined by the results of the examinations tried by the students during the first three and one half years of their high school education. Those whose marks fall within the upper ten per cent of the class are admitted. As it is an honorary society, the club carries on no activities.

First Row: Kritz; Lewis; Dye; Pempsell; Mr. Freeman, principal; Roesicke; Tarbell; Seelbach; Baisch.
Second Row: Clark; Fitch; Bixby; Schloerb; Lane; Parsons; Hilt; Detenbeck.
Third Row: Baker; Leiser; Kirst; Erickson; Marshlow; Johnston; Wiggins.
Fourth Row: Potts; Bengel; Arnold; Jansen; Moelich.

Gemutliche Stunde

First Row: Alt; Napier, vice president; Burley, treasurer; Miss Harms, adviser; Hughes, president; Glennie, secretary; Fisher.
Second Row: Seymour; Wegener; Gudgel; Moelich; Rustay; Davidson; Bretherton.

Because they wished to improve their use of the German language, fourteen members of Miss Harms' German classes formed a new German club, the Gemutliche Stunde, which is known more informally as the afternoon German club. The outstanding difference between this group and the evening German club is that the Gemutliche Stunde is a conversational club, while Der Deutscher Verein is essentially interested in studying German culture.

A part of each meeting is spent conversing in German. This experience will be greatly beneficial in helping the pupils to improve the fluency of their speech, according to Miss Harms, club adviser.

Der Deutche Verein

Some things in life may become monotonous, but Der Deutche Verein members didn't tire of opening each bi-weekly meeting this year by singing heartily, "Ei du Schone, Ei du Schone." There were no reports of discontent concerning the refreshments either.

Under the leadership of Miss Harms, the club included in its activities this year a visit to the University of Buffalo's German Club and a dance with the Kenmore Senior High School Latin Club.

Jack Adams and Dick Simpkins led the group singing at each meeting. German games, a movie, and German folk-dancing were the outstanding activities of the year.

First Row: Grier; Roberts; Hagen; Lyon, treasurer; Smith, secretary; Miss Harms, adviser; Adams, president; Musty, vice president; Hermann; Bowman; Ebling.
Second Row: Denison; Eisert; Shaw; Wild; Nachtrieb; Munz; George; Lingel; Hassel; Godschalk; Cashmore.
Third Row: Goerss; Habicht; Osborne; Strong; Cook; Davis; Schmidt; Donaldson; Simpkins; Hellenberg.

Le Cercle Francais

First Row: MacBride; Beier; Freudenberger, secretary; Seelbach, president; Beardslee; Oliver, treasurer; Brown; Tarbell; Collord.

Second Row: Coffman; Dick; Powers; Austin; Bennett; Hawthorne; Fitch; Schloerb; Wiggins; Potts.

Third Row: Russell; Duddleston; Marshlow; Johnston; Weller; Jansen; Sutherland; Ott; Walker.

English-speaking censored! At the meetings of Le Cercle Francais, which was organized sixteen years ago, members found time to practice their French vocabulary, because all club business was carried on in French. Aiming to better understand the people of France and their culture the students sang songs, presented plays, and read stories in French. Crossword puzzles and a movie were also featured at some meetings, although the unfortunate illness of Mademoiselle Marie-Jeanne Gendreau caused a lull in the activities of the club.

Latin Club

Amid an atmosphere of Roman customs and language, the Latin Club meets once a month to understand the practical and cultural value of Latin. The thirty-five members of the club with their adviser, Miss Lillian M. Barrows, then attempt to interest fellow pupils in this value.

The membership of the club is not limited in number. However, pupils must have passed two years of Latin to be eligible for membership.

A June picnic was being planned when this was written.

First Row: Dye; Cochrane; Brown, praeter; Beardslee, consul; Parsons, consul; Miss Barrows, adviser; Clark, aedile; Pierce, praeter; Burns, quaestor; Pempsell; Graham.

Second Row: Hochheimer; Haffa; Moss; Moore; Bixby; Reissig; Millian; Hadley; Maloney; Anderson; Lotz Hilt.

Third Row: Dent; May; Hood; Larson; Miller; Salmon; Claus; Strauch; Potts; Moelich; Rawe.

Alpha Phi Lambda

First Row: Towe; Tarbell; Brandt, treasurer; Thompson, vice president; Miss Chittenden, adviser; Schloerb, president; Bixby, secretary; Nonenmacher; Smith.
Second Row: Shaw; Potts; Glennie; Erisman; McVay; Fitch; Seymour; Sleeper.
Third Row: Pohl; Johns; Boebel; Baker; Russell; Adams; Martindale; Simpkins; Lyon.

"To kindle the flame of literature" by encouraging creative writing and by advancing the critical ability of its members through discussions of original manuscripts is the objective of Alpha Phi Lambda.

As its major activity, the club publishes annually the "Flame," a book comprised of the best manuscripts submitted by members during the year. To conclude its meetings, the club holds an annual banquet and awards a cup to the two members who have written the most outstanding prose and poetry selections.

With active participation among members and a substantial waiting list of prospective authors, Alpha Phi Lambda held frequent meetings this year to promote its aims.

Boys' Letter Club

Under the leadership of Mr. Albert Witzig, the Boys' Letter Club, an organization devoted to the encouragement of good, clean sportsmanship, has maintained its policy in the past year by means of various activities.

The club held two annual assemblies in the fall and spring. At the former, Jimmy Wilson, football coach at Canisius College spoke. Art Powell, basket ball coach at the University of Buffalo, spoke at the spring assembly, and well-merited letters were presented to the letter men at both events.

During the year, the club held a sport dance, a roller skating party, and a night of sports. Members who participated in the latter enjoyed swimming, badminton, volley ball and various other sports.

First Row: Schack; Freudenberger; Maley, vice president; Kirst, president; Mr. Witzig, adviser; O'Rourke, treasurer; Coleman, secretary; Edwards, Inskip.
Second Row: Moore; Davenport; Mundie; Hiler; Michael; Stevens; Beardslee; Ivancic.
Third Row: Baker; Hintermeier; Stetson; Price; Pettitt; Lilak; Jovicich; Burns; Farley.
Fourth Row: Ebling; Wheelock; Olin; Ehinger; Forsaith; Reichert; Geyer; Twing; Martineck.

Law Club

First Row: Campbell; Baker, secretary; Johnston, president; Mr. Grefe, adviser; Beardslee, vice president; Olin; Markham.
Second Row: Marshlow; Langley; Percival; Wall; Leiser; Erickson.
Third Row: Burns; Weikal; Patterson; Forrest; Pettitt; Hartman; Logan.

Don't let the name fool you. The law club is not a club of future lawyers but an organization that meets bi-monthly to discuss current, social, and economic problems in the news. The twenty members met once with the Tonawanda law club this year. They had outside speakers at some of their round-table discussions.

During the Christmas vacation, the club had a reunion with ex-members. This gave the active members a chance to learn facts about the various colleges that the alumni are attending.

Contributing to the lighter side of the club's activities is its annual picnic.

Girls' Letter Club

Having as its chief activities the sale of candy at athletic events, the preparation of baskets for needy families at Christmas, and the sponsoring of an assembly, the Girls' Letter Club climaxed the year with its annual sports banquet, which featured the awarding of letters earned this year.

An honorary organization composed of girls who have received sports letters, the club has as its purpose the furthering of good sportsmanship and friendship among its members and the promotion of good health through active participation in sports.

First Row: Tanner; McKenneth; Chapple; Jordan, vice president; Fitchijian, president; Miss Kauffman, adviser; Achramovitch, secretary-treasurer; Seelbach; McLeod; Hambleton; Logan;

Aviation Club

First row: MacDowell; Hoag, vice president; Kolk, president; Mr. Scouten, adviser; Davis, treasurer; Swift, secretary; Freeman.

Second row: Rung Eves; Lewis; Comeau; Wiseman; Reid; Smith; Van Summern.

Third row: Jansen; Ferraro; Erickson; Rottger; Spitzer; Prudhomme; Merkle.

Who knows? The members of the Aviation Club may be active in the aeronautical world of tomorrow.

The club attempts to promote interest in and to increase the knowledge of aviation among its members. The membership is open to boys and girls who are genuinely interested.

The club meets four times a month to enjoy a variety of programs such as movies, speakers, and discussions. The members made field trips to the Buffalo Airport and the Curtiss Aircraft plant this year.

Science Club

Concluding what Mr. J. Curtis Palmer, club adviser, termed a successful year, the Science Club, intended for all students interested in scientific subjects, held its last meeting May 14. Meetings were held once a month.

The outstanding activities of this year's club were movie on coal mining, the development of pictures, and a speaker from J. N. Adam's, who showed pictures on the newest methods of photography.

First Row: Lingel; Fairbanks; Worth; Hett; Hubbard; Feeney; Erickson, president; Mr. Palmer, adviser; Patterson, vice president; Fisher; Mitchell; Kritz; Foley; Harris; Brunswick.

Second Row: Gundersen; Woodworth; Rawleigh; Brandt; Rawe; Olin; Mellors; Loewer, Landel; Usher; Dearing; Henderson; Wegener; Adams; Langley.

Third Row: Davidson; White; Donaldson; Achramovitch; Thomann; Logan; Kolk; Lyon; McCormick; Howard; Burns; Saunders; Burley; Ignasiak; Sanders; Lauderdale.

Cheerleaders

First Row: Zimmerman; Tanner; Smith; McKenneth.
Second Row: Anderson; Albrechtson; Staunton; Thomas; Foley.

In trying to convey to the student body that intangible something called spirit, the 1940-41 cheerleading squad introduced five new cheers during this year's pep assemblies. These introductions and the effectiveness of the squad were tributes to the energy and enthusiasm of its nine members and Mr. T. Francis McLaughlin, adviser.

Under the supervision of Mr. McLaughlin and head cheer leader Jeanne McKenneth, tryouts were held in September with eight surviving the final cuts.

Introduced for the first time, regulation uniforms were factors contributing to the squad's success.

Girl Reserves

The Girl Reserves of Kenmore uphold the democratic ideals of both their club and nation by welcoming girls of any race, creed, or nationality to their social and educational functions.

Informative meetings, at which speakers told the girls how to arrange their hair, choose clothes, and acquire poise, took place this year.

Among the outstanding events of this year's club was a fashion show and two baked-goods sales.

First Row: Hatch; Whallon; McLeod; Gary; Roesicke, treasurer; Niven, secretary; S. Jordan, president; Hawthorne; Harris; Pepe; Davis; S. Smith; Walker; Fischler.

Dukes

Founded in 1935 by a group of five, the "Dukes" club has grown from a purely athletic organization to one which stresses a well-rounded program including weekly dinner meetings, talks by outside speakers, discussions, social and athletic activities, an annual Mother-and-Son Banquet, and the promotion of willing service to the school.

After five years of guidance by Mr. Cranston E. Covell, the club, which includes more than sixty active and passive members, is now under the guidance of Mr. Albert J. Kamm.

Ski Club

To help its members improve their telemarks and christies, to reduce their sitzmarks, and above all to have a good time, the Kenmore Ski Club started its second year of existence under the guidance of Mr. Theodore J. Siekmann, last December. More than forty ski enthusiasts enjoyed each trip by bus to Chestnut Ridge, Clarksburg, and Colden where frosty air and snow-covered landscape furnished atmosphere for the sport. Homeward bound, at the end of each trip, the skiers, in spite of a few bruises and some broken skis, filled the bus with their ringing songs.

First Row: Kreher; Hambleton; Davis; McLaren; Mae Kendall, treasurer; M. Patterson, vice president; Mr. Siekmann, adviser; R. Patterson, president; Vogele; Hoffmeister; Massing; Farr; Mildred Kendall.

Aiming to maintain high standards in their work during the first year in the new high school, cafeteria workers, guided by Miss Elizabeth Lewis, director of Kenmore school cafeterias, have efficiently helped in the lunch room. To continue working in the cafeteria, a student must have his scholarship and character approved by the office.

After investigating other school cafeterial systems, a student committee returned generally satisfied with conditions in the high school cafeteria. Permanent seating, luncheon music, and after lunch dancing were introduced this year.

Secretarial Club

Combining education and entertainment, the Girls' Secretarial Club meetings presented the members with information relating to opportunities in the commercial field. Through speakers who are active in the business world, they received pointers also on what modern business demands of its workers.

Included in the club's activities this year were a stationery sale, a field trip to the "Buffalo Evening News," and the sponsoring of a dance.

With "Women in Literature" as a theme, the Girls' Literary Club has attempted to interest its ninety-five members in countries of the world that hold the public's eye today. The books that were reviewed told the lives of women in England, Finland, Russia, the Orient, and America, and were written by Pearl Buck, Alice Tisdale Hobert, Katherine Cornell, Sally Salmien and Lin Yutang.

Each meeting had a different country for its program. The novels and biographies reviewed have encouraged reading for pleasure and information and have created an interest in modern events. The programs were organized and presented by the members themselves, who are either juniors or seniors.

A novel event was the introduction of afternoon teas. The usual program went on, and the teas were attended with unusual enthusiasm. To add interest to the programs, a musical selection was given at each meeting. The music always pertained to the particular country that held the limelight for that meeting.

Active financially as well as socially, the literary club sold personal labels. With the money gathered from the sale and collection of dues, the club made its annual donation of library books to the school.

Founded in 1923 by Miss Louise Belden, the Girls' Literary Club has been an active girls' organization. Besides being the oldest club in the school, it has done much to teach the appreciation of good literature. Miss C. Esther Hepinstall is now the adviser of the club.

To top off an interesting and eventful year, the club held a spring banquet in May.

Forum Club

Do you know what high school students think about some of the problems facing the United States today? Members of the Forum Club of Kenmore High School devote their meetings to the discussion of these current problems.

Reorganized only since February 5, the Forum Club, under the adviser-ship of Mr. George Barna, has taken as topics for discussion such American issues as: How to Aid Britain Most Effectively; Should Labor Be Conscripted for National Defense Work?; Should the United States Boycott Japan and Russia?; and How Far Should the United States Go in Defense of the Western Hemisphere? These discussions have been led by the president, Faye Seel-bach.

Members of the Forum Club pay no dues. Money for refreshments, other club activities, and "The Kenitorial" picture was raised through the theater party sponsored by the club in March and the Chocolate Easter Bunny sale conducted in April. Because of the late start in organizing the club this year, there was no sale of chocolate Santa Clauses at Christmas. However, the club will sponsor this sale in future years as in the past. Only juniors and seniors are eligible for membership in the club.

The various activities of the club are carried on by committees in charge of the programs, the ways and means, the refreshments, and the social events.

When this was written, plans for the annual picnic to be held at Beaver Island State Park June 3 were underway.

At the June 6 assembly the Forum Club presented a colored picture of the "Declaration of Independence" to the school. The club hopes that this gift of a different picture every year will become an annual affair. The Forum Club award to the outstanding member of the year was presented to Faye Seelbach.

Pins were presented to Faye Seelbach, president; Betty Miller, secretary; and Dick Johnston, treasurer.

Under the direction of Mr. Carl W. Hann, the general aim of the Kenmore High School Band is to give the members experience in playing together and to acquaint them with the works of the better known composers. The preliminary training in playing the various instruments that make up the band is given in the B and C bands, also under Mr. Hann's leadership.

Playing at all home football games, the band entertained the fans with music during the half and time outs. Traveling also to the out-of-town Tonawanda contest, they helped boost the morale of the team by playing despite the rain and cold.

During the year the band participated in four assemblies and staged a matrimonial farce, entitled "A Southern Wedding."

The band took part, also, in the pageant which marked the dedication of the new senior high school, supplying music before and after the performance and during the intermissions.

Although the band as a whole did not enter competition this year, the trumpet trio composed of Herbert Schultz, Frank Meier and Ray Bartholomew took honors in the district contest held at Fredonia.

As is an annual custom, a number of the members of A band, in February made a trip to the Harding Elementary School where they played for both the upper and lower grades.

The band was again asked to participate in the Houde Engineering Corporation's annual field day, which took place on May 10. After leading a short parade, the band entertained the crowd with musical numbers during intermissions in the program.

As usual, participation in the village parades for Armistice Day and Memorial Day was another activity.

Chorus

An important part of the music in Kenmore High School is the choral work under the direction of Mr. T. Francis McLaughlin. He has developed this group to even greater heights of musical achievement this year.

The mixed chorus is composed of sophomores, juniors, and seniors from three classes which meet three days a week. It is an elective course in which one may earn one-half credit for each year of work.

Singing for several assembly programs, the chorus took part also in the formal dedication of the senior high school, at which time they sang "Great and Glorious" and "Land of Hope and Glory," both songs of patriotic flavor.

The annual Christmas Pageant, presented jointly by the dramatic club and the chorus, was another outstanding event of the season. "The Hallelujah Chorus," "Jesu Bambino," "O Holy Night," and "Birthday of a King" were some of the selections which were included in the program together with solos by Dorothy Buck, Jacqueline Taylor, and Frank Meier.

In co-operation with Miss Eve Strong, drama teacher, Mr. McLaughlin introduced a new type of musical entertainment in the form of an operetta to the high school this year. In May, members of the chorus, together with drama students, presented "Chonita", a colorful Gypsy romance, with music by Franz Liszt and words adapted by Ira B. Wilson. Those playing the major musical roles were Jacqueline Taylor, Dorothy Buck, Frank Meier, Thomas Arnold, and James Biggie. Playing the speaking parts were Jack Adams, Jean Clark, and Douglas Adams.

Two other choral groups, the Girls' Choir and the Boys' Glee Club, also performed in assemblies and other school activities. Both groups are extra-curricular.

Symbolical of the first year in the new building, the athletic program has also enjoyed the privilege of new equipment. While the varsity teams have been building a new school spirit, the new intramural program has supplemented the athletic interest and educational knowledge of the average student with more physical preparedness.

COACHES

Football

Once again, under the guidance of Coaches Richard Offenhamer and LeRoy Pitkin, the Kenmore High School football squad has emerged a co-champion in the Niagara Frontier Football League, sharing the high honor with the Tonawanda High School football team.

Pre-season predictions hinted that the Kenmore eleven had no chance of repeating last year's outstanding feat. However, Mentors Offenhamer and Pitkin took in hand an outfit almost completely unschooled in the talents of the gridiron and turned out a smooth-running grid machine under the leadership of Captain George Thomas.

Each of the seven scheduled games of the season had outstanding events. The first and second contests of the year, against Trott and LaSalle High Schools, were won in closing seconds of play. At Lockport, Kenmore came from behind in final minutes to tie the score. Rated definitely as under dogs, the Blue and White held North Tonawanda to a tie under the lights. When the Niagara Falls squad invaded the village, Kenmore went on a 33 point spree. The Tonawanda game, also under the lights, marked the eleven's only defeat. In the final clash the co-champions avenged last year's Lackawanna defeat by holding the Steelmen scoreless.

With sportsmanship typical of Kenmore High School's athletic representatives, the grid squad displayed a high type of physical skill. The many eager substitutes fighting for first team positions helped to supply inspiration for a spirited co-champion team.

While Coach Offenhamer was in the hospital because of an infected finger, Mr. Chester Bollier, intramural instructor, ably assisted Coach Pitkin in building a winning combination for the first two games.

With the national defense program claiming several first string players, a weakened Kenmore High School basketball squad placed fifth in the St. Lawrence Basketball League. The Blue and White quintet scored four wins in the first round of play and seemed on the way to the playoffs, but, weakened in the final set, they won but two contests. Gaining special recognition, Bob LeRoy was given honorable mention as forward on the All-Star team.

With an almost completely new team competing against several veteran fives, Kenmore faced a discouraging situation. The team, however, proved itself to be a fighting combination and gave the crowd plenty of thrills during the season.

Much of Coach Wesley Snyder's time was spent in training the twenty-one players who will be here next season. With this many men returning, he looks forward to a fine season next year.

A comparison of the season's scores shows that Kenmore scored 349 points while their opponents scored 425.

While the K.H.S. junior varsity team won but one game during the season, the players gained much valuable experience which will help them in later seasons. Several of their defeats were very close, the opponent winning by only one or two points after Kenmore had led up until the final three or four minutes of play.

Swimming

With a season record unblemished by defeat, Kenmore mermen, defending co-champions, captured the Niagara Frontier swimming crown by virtue of seven victories against one tie. Inaugurating the first season in the new Kenmore High School pool, veteran swimmers, few in number because of graduation, were the nucleus around which a less experienced squad had to be developed. Forming this nucleus of 1940 co-champions were Harold Inskip, Don Freudenberger, Jim Forsaith, Tom Farley, Don Mundie and Bob Colby. Several newcomers, namely, John Tremos, the diver who transferred to Kenmore, Jim Weig, the sophomore free styler, and Bob O'Grady, the 100 yard breast-stroker, who did well in his first year of competition, strengthened the team in their various events.

Prior to the season's opening, the swimmers elected Harold Inskip, veteran 220 yard free styler, to captain them over the campaign. Under his leadership, the team surprised Coach Charles S. Pohl by sweeping over all opposition save the mermen of Amherst, with whom they tied.

Two factors contributing to the team's success were the 150-yard medley relay and the 220-yard free style foursome. On these events the outcome of nearly all the meets weighed heavily and often were the difference between Blue and White victory or defeat.

Once again guiding the mermen to league supremacy was veteran Coach Charles Pohl, who was ably assisted by B-team Coach C. Sherwood Miller, piloting the "jayvee" squad to five victories against three losses during the season.

Post-season competition in the sectional finals, which were held in the Kenmore pool, gave the Blue and White swimmers the distinction of having won more points than the foremost aqua-men of the entire league. Kenmore's 30 points captured the first place position.

Having completed both the 1939 and 1940 track season undefeated, the Kenmore High School track team hopefully looks forward to another successful season this year. The schedule, when this went to press, includes five meets, four out of town and one at home, the most difficult of which will be the triangular meet with Jamestown and Dunkirk at Dunkirk on May 29. The Kenmore Invitational Meet, the only home meet scheduled so far, is also expected to be a good meet. According to Coach Wes Snyder, there is a bright outlook for the team with Captain Bill Kirst again running the "220", Dick Hintermeier hurling the disc for the second year, and broad jumper John Stevens having a good chance of breaking his brother's broad jumping record. Other team mates expected to show fine form are Clark Beardslee and Howard Forrest, low-hurdlers, and Dick Ebling, shot putter.

1940 Championship Season

Kenmore's undefeated 1940 season was marked by large margin victories over such teams as Tonawanda, Lockport, and Batavia. Honors were also won by Kenmore at the Kenmore Invitational Meet by a goodly margin.

Characterized by three brilliant singles players and two exceptional doubles combinations, the Kenmore High School tennis team got off to a flying start in the fall of the season by remaining undefeated.

In place of a regular team of seven, the team uses twelve players, captained by Al Twing, who participate in regularly scheduled fall and spring contests.

The team is contesting for a trophy offered by the Western New York alumnae of the University of Pennsylvania to the champion team of the Niagara Frontier League.

At the close of the fall half of their two-fold season, Kenmore High School golfers were in first place in the Suburban High School League. In the 1940 spring and fall seasons, the linksmen won eight victories and received three setbacks. At the western New York Golf Tourney held at Niagara Falls after regular competition had ended, the Blue and White golfers captured first place with a total score of 347, which defeated Trott and La Salle, the closest competitors. Coaching the four-man team was Mr. C. Sherwood Miller.

Prospects for the 1941 spring season were brightened by the fact that four veteran linksmen, Kenneth Rawe, Bob Morton, Walter Voisinet, and Harry Wright, returned for competition.

More than one hundred girls participated in the popular sport of bowling this year when advanced and beginning teams met on Monday and Wednesday nights respectively at the Ten Pin Club. The eight highest scorers of the year will receive "K's" for their achievements.

Learning the various "ins and outs" of the apparatus in the corrective gym has been fun, but at the same time postures have been corrected and better figures developed. Five periods of gym a week is accepted whole-heartedly by the girls who wish to decrease their weight and measurements.

This was the first year that the girls used the play-off system in basketball. After reaching the play-offs with three other senior teams, Eloise Logan's team came through successfully as senior champions.

With the added facilities offered athletics in the new school, the girls of Kenmore High School have enjoyed an extensive intramural program this year. Basket ball, volley ball, lacrosse, tennis, badminton, and bowling represent a few of the competitive sports.

Ping-Pong

First Row: Johnson; McDonald; Schunk; Joe Sweeney; Olin; Jack Sweeney.

A variety in sports, ranging from table tennis tournaments to inter-class swimming meets, planned along intramural lines, provided many extra-curricular activites during the initial year in the new Kenmore Senior High School. With a fuller, more rounded plan for an extensive intramural program, home room competition was intended to promote good sportsmanship, recreation, and physical development.

Through the efforts of Mr. Chester A. Bollier, new physical education instructor, two basket ball leagues were formed and volley ball, swimming, and ping pong were available to students. Whenever a championship was won by a home room group, the room received points. The home room which has secured the most points will receive a plaque at the end of the year.

In addition, badminton and tennis tournaments also were a part of the intramural program and the American Senior Red Cross Life Saving Course was open to all fellows seventeen years of age or over.

Since only a minority of the vast population of Kenmore High's students play on varsity teams, a much larger and more complete intramural program offered numerous recreational opportunities.

WORDS FAIL

When words fail, use the language of music. Say it with recorded music—records of music expressing every mood of the human heart—records that convey your sentiment in notes more tender than most of us could write.

For while words are often stumbling blocks to thoughts; melodies give wings to thought, singing their message more beautifully with each repetition.

Selecting is easy because we pride ourselves on our variety. Classical, popular, swing, and novelty records.
